

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

1. COORDINATES ON A NEW METHODOLOGICAL PERSPECTIVE	pp. 2-23
1.1. DANIEL AS PROTOTESTAMENTARY BOOK: REFERENCES ABOUT SOME PROBLEMATIC QUESTIONS	pp. 3-8
1.1.1. The linguistic structure	pp. 3-5
1.1.2. The literary structure	pp. 5-6
1.1.3. Daniel Wirkungsgeschichte	pp. 7-8
1.2. DANIEL AS A SOURCE FOR PALEOCHRISTIAN COMMUNITIES: ITS RECEPTION	pp. 9-17
1.2.1. From paleochristian literature to paleochristian identity: a methodological reflection	pp. 11-17
a) Short excursus on the most common interpretations of Daniel types	pp. 13-14
b) Coordinates on a new methodology	pp. 14-17
1.3. THE PLAN OF THE PRESENT WORK	pp. 18-23
a) A pluridisciplinary approach	pp. 18
b) The delimitation of the work	pp. 18-19
c) The methodological steps	pp. 19-21
d) A terminological clarification	pp. 21-23

I.

THE TYPOLOGICAL USE OF DANIEL “TALES”

2. “TALES” OF DANIEL IN JUDEO-CHRISTIANITY. FROM PASCHA EX PASSIONE TO MARTYRDOM	pp. 25-93
2.1. THE CONTINUITY BETWEEN MARTYRDOM AND PASSION: DANIEL “TALES” AND JONAH IN PALEOCHRISTIAN ICONOGRAPHY	pp. 27-40
2.1.1. The programmatic function of Jonah cycle	pp. 27-30
2.1.2. Jonah cycle and Dn “tales”	pp. 30-37
a) Lateran antefixes (REP 1:130)	pp. 35-37
2.1.3. Excursus : the adoption of the three Hebrews’ type from Jewish Easter to Quartodeciman theology	pp. 38-40
2.2. FROM SEQUELA TO “IDENTIFICATION”: DANIEL “TALES” AND THE SYMBOLS OF THE CROSS	pp. 40-58
2.2.1. Does a “staurologic pose” exist?	pp. 41-47
a) Camposanto Teutonico fragment (REP 1:894)	pp. 44-46
2.2.2. The cross and the ship	pp. 47-58
a) Velletri tombstone (REP 2:242)	pp. 49-58
2.3. THE LITERARY VOICE OF “QUARTODECIMAN” DANIEL: “TALES” IN ACTA MARTYRUM	pp. 59-90
2.3.1. The “paradigmatic” case of Martyrium Polycarpi	pp. 60-75
a) Literal citations	pp. 62-63
b) Non-literal allusions	pp. 63-65
c) Narrative coincidences	pp. 65-67
d) From “assumption” to “theological elaboration”	pp. 67-70
e) Excursus: from typology to cult. The “bread” and the martyr	pp. 71-75
2.3.2 A “visual portrait”: Passio Fructuosi, Auguri et Eulogi	pp. 76-85

2.3.3. Between “martyrdom” and “Spirit”: Passio Montani et Lucii	pp. 86-90
2.4. FINAL CONSIDERATIONS	pp. 91-93
3. BEFORE SALVATION: THE APOCALYPTIC CAOS AND JEWISH-CHRISTIAN HERMENEUTICS	pp. 94-152
3.1. A PARADIGMATIC CASE OF “APOCALYPTIC ASSUMPTION”: DANIEL “TALES” IN ADVERSUS HAERESSES	pp. 99-125
3.1.1. The “apocalyptic contents”: the theological value of the three Hebrews citation in Adversus Haereses	pp. 103-112
a) The episode of the furnace and the tribulatio	pp. 105-110
b) The Hebrews and the iusti	pp. 110-112
3.1.2. The method of the citation: the “apocalyptic symbology” in the three Hebrews’ reference	pp. 113-125
a) The “number of the beast”	pp. 115-118
b) The fire	pp. 118-122
c) The water	pp. 122-125
3.2. LITERARY PARALLELS FOR IRENAEUS’ EXEGESIS	pp. 126-135
3.2.1. The case of Methodius of Olympus’ De Resurrectione	pp. 126-131
3.2.2. The case of De Pascha Computus	pp. 132-135
3.3. THE “APOCALYPTIC ICONOGRAPHY” OF THE THREE HEBREWS AND NOAH	pp. 136-148
a) Noah and the Hebrews: realia.	pp. 136-138
b) The type of Noah between baptism and salvation	pp. 138-142
3.3.1. “Apocalypse” in iconography? The figurative couple formed by the Hebrews and Noah	pp. 142-144
a) Apocalypse and iconography: a methodological reflection	pp. 143-144
3.3.2. The crisis of fire and water	pp. 144-148
3.4. FINAL CONSIDERATIONS	pp. 149-150
4. “EXIERUNT EDUCTI VELUT MANU DEI”: DANIEL “TALES” AND CHRISTIANS’ ESCHATOLOGICAL DESTINY	pp. 153-233
4.1. EXCURSUS. ESCHATOLOGY AND ICONOGRAPHY, FROM “PARADIGMI DI SALVAZIONE” TO “ESCHATOLOGICAL TYPES”	pp. 155-157
4.2. THE “SAVED-MARTYR”: DANIEL IN LIONS’ DEN IN CATACOMB PAINTINGS	pp. 158-200
a) Daniel in Pietro and Marcellino catacomb	pp. 159-161
4.2.1. Daniel and the resurrection: Eliodora’s vault	pp. 162-166
4.2.2. Daniel and baptism: cubicle III of Pietro and Marcellino catacomb	pp. 167-169
4.2.3. Daniel and salvation: the cubicle of Susanna	pp. 170-187
a) The arch (inferior level): the “baptismal” scene of Noah	pp. 172-175
b) The vault (intermediate level): the “second pergola”	pp. 176-179
c) The skylight (superior level): Lazarus and the “saved-Daniel”	pp. 179-183
d) From the single sections to the whole program	pp. 184-186
4.2.4. Daniel and the community: the cubicle of Nicerus	pp. 187-200
a) The bottom-wall	pp. 189-192
b) The left-wall	pp. 193-195
c) The right-wall	pp. 195-197
d) The vault	pp. 197-199
e) From the single sections to the whole program	pp. 199-200
4.3. OTHER TRACES OF AN ESCHATOLOGICAL RECEPTION OF DANIEL “TALES”	pp. 201-230
4.3.1. The Hebrews and flesh resurrection: from Irenaeus to Tertullian	pp. 201-215
a) The “undamaged” Hebrews in Irenaeus	pp. 202-206
b) Men’s futura integritas in Tertullian	pp. 207-215

4.3.2. “The fourth in the furnace”: the interpretation of a biblical character, from Hebrew Bible to Christian authors.	pp. 216-230
a) “ The fourth ” as Logos in Irenaeus	pp. 220-222
b) “ The fourth ” as Jesus Christ in De Pascha Computus	pp. 222-223
c) From “Son of God” to “Son of Man” in Tertullian	pp. 223-228
d) From the “Son” to the “Angel” in Clement of Alexandria	pp. 229-230
4.4. FINAL CONSIDERATIONS	pp. 231-233
I I.
“TALES” OF DANIEL IN THE TYPOLOGY OF THE CHURCH
5. FROM THE “FURNACE” TO THE PRESENT OF COMMUNITIES	pp. 235-294
5.1. “TALES” BETWEEN MARTYRS AND CONFESSORS: DANIEL “TYPES” AND EARLY CHURCH IN CYPRIAN.	pp. 236-275
5.1.1. What Daniel could not do: the interpretation of “tales” in De Lapsis	pp. 237-247
a) Can a martyr grant forgiveness? Daniel “tales” in the light of Ezekiel	pp. 239-245
b) From “typology of the church” to parenesis	pp. 245-247
5.1.2. The identity of the “martyr”. “Tales” in Cyprian’s Epistulae	pp. 248-269
a) “Et si non”: the Hebrews as confessores .	pp. 248-253
b) Dying for faith: the three Hebrews as martyrs	pp. 254-261
c) End times and the martyr: Daniel and the three Hebrews in Epistle 67	pp. 261-264
d) When the confessor is a bishop	pp. 265-269
5.1.3. Excursus : some considerations about the text of Daniel assumed by Cyprian	pp. 270-272
5.1.4. A final reflection on Cyprian’s reception of “tales”	pp. 273-275
5.2. HONORATA MORS. DANIEL “TALES” IN TERTULLIAN’S ELABORATION ABOUT MARTYRDOM	pp. 276-294
5.2.1. From death to God’s Spirit: Jeremiah and the three Hebrews in Scorpiace	pp. 276-289
a) Scorpiace 8:1: declaring the role of death	pp. 280-281
b) Scorpiace 8:2-3: the sacrifice of the prophets	pp. 281-283
c) Scorpiace 8:4-6: from death to Spirit	pp. 283-286
d) Scorpiace 8:7-8: coming back to the importance of sacrifice	pp. 286-288
e) In conclusion	pp. 288-289
5.2.2. From “earthly survival” to “eschatological salvation”: Luke and the three Hebrews in Adversus Marcionem	pp. 289-294
6. THE “TYPOLOGY OF THE CHURCH” IN ICONOGRAPHY: DANIEL TYPES AND THE PERSECUTED COMMUNITY	pp. 295-336
6.1. “DECONSTRUCTING” ICONOGRAPHY: THE ELABORATION PROCESS OF THE THREE HEBREWS’ TYPES	pp. 296-312
6.1.1. “Building the furnace”: the first step in the visual adoption of the Hebrews’ “tale”	pp. 299-301
6.1.2. From the three Hebrews to the three wise men: from refusal to adoration	pp. 301-312
a) The “coexistence” of the Hebrews and the wise men: San Damaso sarcophagus	pp. 304-307
b) The “substitution” of the Hebrews with the wise men: Cherchel antefixes	pp. 308-309
c) The “fusion” of the Hebrews and the wise men: St. Gilles-du-Gard fragment	pp. 309-312
6.2. EXCURSUS. THE BODY OF DANIEL: FROM THE TYPE OF THE LIONS’ DEN TO ECCLESIA MARTYRUM	pp. 313-316
6.3. SUSANNA AND THE ORANT: MAKING A “MARTYRIAL COMMUNITY”	pp. 317-333
6.3.1. The “typological” fortune of Daniel 13 in literature. Susanna and the “menaced” church	pp. 317-321

6.3.2. The iconography of Susanna. From the “menaced church” to the “persecuted church”	pp. 321-333
a) The “type of Susanna”	pp. 322-326
b) Susanna and the portrait of the dead: a case of “figurative resemblance”	pp. 326-328
c) From “figurative resemblance” to “exegetical interpretation”: the portrait of the “dead-martyr”	pp. 329-332
d) From the “elders” to the “apostles”. A problematic connection	pp. 332-333
6.4. FINAL CONSIDERATIONS	pp. 334-336

II. THE ALLEGORIC USE OF DANIEL “TALES”

7. THE “ALLEGORIC” APPROACH TO “TALES”	pp. 338-379
7.1. “PERIPHERAL USE” OF “TALES”: ORIGEN AS AN INTERPRETATIVE PARADIGM	pp. 339-352
a) Origen and the “tales”: an overall view	pp. 341-343
7.1.1. Excursus. The “formular” reception of “tales”, from Origen to early Christianities	pp. 344-346
7.1.2. Daniel as instrument to read Scriptures: the “allegoric-scriptural” reception of “tales”	pp. 347-353
7.2. THE “ALLEGORIC-FIGURAL” INTERPRETATION: “TALES” AS MODELS OF CHRISTIAN REALITIES	pp. 354-377
7.2.1. The “tale” of Susanna and its “moral” interpretation	pp. 354-364
a) Daniel in the story of Susanna: the “moral allegory” in Origen	pp. 355-356
b) Susanna as figura: the allegory of chastity.	pp. 356-361
c) “Allegory” in iconography? The “illustration” of Susanna’s story	pp. 361-364
7.2.2. “Tales” as models to build a “theological system”. Christian wisdom and the reading of Scriptures	pp. 365-377
a) “Tales” and the degrees of Christian wisdom.	pp. 365-370
b) “Tales” and the “revelation” of Scripture	pp. 371-372
c) “Tales” and the truth of God’s word. A possible case of “peripheral typology”?	pp. 372-377
7.3. FINAL CONSIDERATIONS	pp. 378-379

III. THE LITERARY USE OF DANIEL “TALES”

8. DANIEL “TALES” IN A “LITERARY” PERSPECTIVE	pp. 381-412
8.1. FROM THE “PASSAGES” TO THE “BOOK”: “TALES” AND THE SYSTEMATIC APPROACH TO DANIEL	pp. 382-402
8.1.1. The “tales” and the “book”: Hippolytus’ interpretation of Daniel narrations	pp. 383-387
a) The prologue: contents and methods of the commentary	pp. 387-389
b) Susanna in the commentary In Danielelem	pp. 389-393
c) The three Hebrews’ in the commentary In Danielelem	pp. 393-399
d) Daniel in the lions’ den in the commentary In Danielelem	pp. 399-401
e) Conclusive consideration	pp. 401-402
8.2. A “LITERARY RECEPTION” OF “TALES” IN ICONOGRAPHY?	pp. 403-409
8.2.1. A “cycle” of Daniel ?	pp. 403-406
8.2.2. The “tale” of Daniel and the dragon	pp. 406-410

8.3. CONCLUSIVE CONSIDERATIONS

pp. 411-412

CONCLUSIVE CONSIDERATIONS AND FURTHER RESEARCH PERSPECTIVES

9. REVALUATING THE “TALES”: THE SPECIFICITY OF THE “HAGGADIC DANIEL” CIRCULATION IN EARLY CHRISTIANITIES

pp. 414-420

9.1. A “MARTYRIAL TYPOLOGY”

pp. 415-417

9.2. “TALES” AND THE LIFE OF COMMUNITY: THE IMPORTANCE OF LITURGY

pp. 417-420

BIBLIOGRAPHY

pp. 421-472

COMMENTARIES

pp. 423-424

CRITICAL EDITIONS

pp. 425-431

ICONOGRAPHIC SOURCES

pp. 432-434

TEXT AND STUDIES

pp. 435-472